

Deana Luke is currently a Health and Safety Manager and a Laser Safety Officer at the National Renewable Energy Laboratory in Golden, CO. She has a diverse background in the environment, health and safety field having worked over 28 years in industry, R&D, and consulting sectors. Ms. Luke began performing laser safety in 1991 and has experience evaluating laser systems in high-tech manufacturing settings as well as in R&D environments. She obtained a B.S. in Community Health from Northern Illinois University and has a M.S. in Environmental Sciences from the University of Colorado. She has participated in the DOE EFCOG Laser Safety Task group since 2009.