

Measuring Residual Strain after Hot Isostatic Pressing of ISIS Target Plates

Wednesday, 6 June 2018 11:40 (20 minutes)

A novel method was used to measure residual stress in tantalum-clad tungsten after manufacture via Hot Isostatic Pressing. A significant tensile stress was measured in the cladding, as predicted by FEA simulations. This will be an important consideration in the design of future spallation targets.

Primary author: Mr WILCOX, Dan (RAL)

Presenter: Mr WILCOX, Dan (RAL)

Session Classification: Session 6-Construction, Fabrication, Inspection, Quality Assurance

Track Classification: 6-Construction, Fabrication, Inspection, Quality Assurance