

Eigenvector Continuation with Auxiliary Field Monte Carlo

Tuesday, July 24, 2018 6:45 PM (2 hours)

Eigenvector Continuation is a new method designed to aid in the calculation of lattice observables in situations where conventional methods, like perturbation theory, fails. We present the details of this method, and results for simulations of the Coulomb interaction in ^4He and ^8Be , using both Auxiliary Field Monte Carlo and Eigenvector Continuation.

Primary author: Mr FRAME, Dillon (Michigan State University)

Co-author: Prof. LEE, Dean (Michigan State University)

Presenter: Mr FRAME, Dillon (Michigan State University)

Session Classification: Poster reception

Track Classification: Hadron Spectroscopy and Interactions