Bad channels

I looked at bad channels

- List from BNL CE group checked all 15360 channels with pulser data
- I have started checked these with recent artDAQ data
  - Summarized in table below
    - 38 + 1 put in bad channels list
    - 5 appeared to be OK and are not marked bad

BNL CE label	# ch	# bad	# sticky	# good
Inactive FE	4	3	0	1
Inverted gain	2	0	0	2
Broken connection pre FE	34	34	0	0
Significant stuck bits	45		1	1
ENC > 2000e	3	1	1	1
ENV < 2000 e	many	1

Bad channels are in dunetpc

- ChannelStatusService will return them
- Recorded in fcl that is part of dunetpc
- Changes will be in this week's release (a very few last week)

Like to get feedback from higher-level reco

- Does this list help?
- Are there additional bad channels?
  - I will do more comprehensive search as I look for sticky codes

Dataprep handling

- Right now dataprep treats these like any other channels

Sticky codes

Sticky codes

Well known that we have sticky codes

- ADC output jumps to these codes where we do not expect it for a smooth variation with tick
- Big variation from channel to channel
- And different sticky codes for different channels
- Major emphasis of BNL ADC testing was to try to identify and discard ADC chips with lots of stickiness

Some code now in place to address the problem

- Tool FclStickyCodeFlagger provides means to flag sticky codes
  - List of sticky codes for each channel stored in fcl
- Tool AdcCodeMitigator replaces signal for flagged ticks with either
  - A fixed value or
  - Interpolation between nearest non-sticky neighbors (preferred)
- Now need to find the sticky codes
  - Do this separately near and away from pedestal

Looking for beam

Finding the beam

Often want to check we have beam related events

- Remember trigger flag is set to 12 for beam triggers
- I like to look at APA3z displays
  - Increase range to 400 ADC counts to better see signal
  - Example plots for run 5308 follow
    - This run has beam trigger that suppresses electrons
    - I draw line where beam tracks appear to start
      - » Offset due to space charge
      - » Varies from run to run (and within run?)
  - Full set (including random trigger) at <http://home.fnal.gov/~dladams/protodune/apa3zAdc/run005308/plots.html>
  - Selected events 0-699
    - 116 events
    - 36 have trigger 12
    - Maybe 24 are consistent with my beam position
