

Snowmass Attendance Survey

We are trying to gauge people's willingness to attend the Seattle Summer Snowmass meeting scheduled for July 17-26th of 2022 - this summer!

COVID has upended all the calculus around holding a meeting of this size. Please speak your own truth - if there are others you know and want to make sure their voice is heard - please share the link with them so they can answer it as well! For this to work, we really need lots and lots of input!

* Required

Snowmass is a 9.5 day workshop. Current planning is to have 1 day of plenary meetings at the start and 1.5 days at the end. In the middle will be parallel meetings, with many parallel sessions running (we are currently planning on 14). There will also be periodic cross-frontier gatherings for panel sessions and colloquia like talks and discussions.

There will also be an optional conference dinner

1. Is it useful for you to attend the Snowmass Summer Workshop in person? *

Deciding to attend or not in the face of COVID

New cases in the USA, with an inset of the hospitalization rate. These were pulled from the NYTimes COVID stats page (Jan 14, 2022).

9. What is the worst level of infection rate you'd be willing to travel and attend the Seattle meeting? *

Mark only one oval.

- Point A, on the new cases plot. This is the present time, with Omicron in full swing. Many universities holding remote classes
- Point B, this was last winter, around January, prior to the vaccine being widely available. Most work and schools were remote in the USA.
- Point C, the delta surge, occurred late summer 2021 into the fall of 2021. Many schools resumed in-person classes as the rates declined
- Point D, Spring 2021, as the country started coming out of lockdown and vaccines were being broadly distributed.
- Point E, Summer 2021, summer lull before the Delta variant took off.
- My institution's or country's travel restrictions related to COVID are the concern more than the case load

10. There is no way to get everyone's full perspective with a multiple choice question like that. Please feel free to add a sentence or so if you wish!
